From Fugitive Cash to Non-Fugitive Provisioning: Redistribution Feasibility under International Settlement Constraints

Franny Philos Sophia

- Same-welfare transfers produce divergent macrofinancial footprints under FX limits
- Universal cash can worsen welfare in low-creditworthiness, low-self-sufficiency blocs
- Feasibility depends on structural position, producing an institutional phase diagram
- Automation amplifies the selection pressure, shrinking the set of viable regimes
- Cost-of-living adjustment creates a world-price externality across blocs
